
TEACHING NOTE

Someone, somewhere, under pressure

Begin with a small gesture

A scene begins when someone wants something. Read the passage below and notice what the character cannot say.

A place to wait. A reason to stay.

What remains unsaid at this table?

Eleanor chose the bench furthest from the bandstand. She set the paper bag beside her and folded its top twice, although there was nothing in it that could spill.

Try it in your own writing

Place someone in a familiar setting. Give them a private worry and let one ordinary object carry the pressure.
